

I Was Made for You – © Kaufman & Perri 2014

I call your name out in my prayers
Chase your rainbow through the air
Your sudden laughter fills my heart
I was made for you

The language of my lovesick gaze
Has changed from black and white to grey
I only understand that I
I was made for you

Oh I was made for you; I was made for you; for this day

A garden blessed with one fair rose
One door open the others closed
The heavens lit with one bright star
I was made for you

A forest silent but for the sound
Of two hearts crying right out loud
The whisper of a single thought
I was made for you

Oh I was made for you; I was made for you

But there were days when heaven seemed so far away
And I came to believe that I couldn't reach that far
Naked and cold I faced the world alone
Staring off at the distant stars

Then suddenly stars shifted and
I heard your voice I took your hand
And knew at once with all my heart
I was made for you

And when you looked into my eyes
And sighed with such sweet surprise
And said the things I felt inside
Oh I was made for you

Oh I was made for you; I was made for you; for this day

I call your name out in my prayers (I was made for you, I was made for you)
Chase your rainbow through the air (I was made I was made I was made for you)
Your sudden laughter fills my heart (I was made for you, I was made, I was made for you)
Darling I was made for you, oh I was made for you, I was made I was made for you, darling I was made, I was made I was made for you, mmmhhmm)
