

Outshines the Sun – © Kaufman & Perri 2014

Love looks not just with the eyes but with everything inside
That's why every winged cupid is born blind
You stormed by me in the night, a crooked dot upon an "i"
A strange comet blazing a barren sky

A thought that when all is said and done, outshines the sun, outshines the sun

You're the best of dark and bright, a troubled dream of pure delight
A perfect rainbow on a dark stormy night
On a stairway to the skies, stars reflecting in your eyes
This simple thought occurred at once to me

A thought that when all is said and done, outshines the sun, outshines the sun

I spread my dreams before your feet
And say "yes" beauty and the beast
Can find a love that stays true
For all time

A thought that when all is said and done, outshines the sun, outshines the sun

I believe true love is blind and waits for the moment
To draw back the curtains and unmask our eyes
I believe the love we find can peel away the scales
That shadow our eyes, and hobble our minds

A thought that when all is said and done, outshines the sun
Outshines the sun, outshines the sun,

Love looks not just with the eyes but with everything inside
Outshines the sun (repeats)
Love looks not just with the eyes but with everything inside
Love looks not just with the eyes but with everything inside
Love (repeats)
Love looks not just with the eyes but with everything inside (repeats)